Town Meeting

The annual town meeting was held in the Opera House on Monday morning and the usual apathy toward town matters was shown by the majority of the ratepayers being absent. At eleven o'clock there was ten persons present in spite of the time being set for ten o'clock, and considering that mominations for candidates for the different public offices had to be made. different public offices had to be made before 12 o'clock the Town Clerk had to open the meeting in spite of so few being present. Most of the Conneil-lors were present but the Mayor did not come in until the meeting was started, when a few more of the rate-payers also came in. The Clerk had to read the yearly report of fown mat-ters twice, as the few who were presters twice, as the few who were present at first were the only ones who heard it read. The report was as

A good many remarks have been made at the small number of ratepayers present at the an-nual town meeting on Monday, about thirty all fold being present. Out of all the merchants along Railway Street there were only five who took enough interest in town affairs to hear how their tax es had been spent, and to help to nominate men for office to spend their next year's taxes. What do you think of that, a beautiful state of affairs. The busines men, the biggest taxpayers of all coolly sitting in their busines places while matters of as big im portance to them as their own usiness are taking place, and at that just once a very for two hours. We believe Didsbury has the best lot of business men of any town its size in Atherta but they make a big mistake when they will not leave their busines in charge of their clerks for two hours once a year and give their attention to town affairs for

DAME FASHION'S DECREES

In fitting out a girl for winter at school it naturally makes some difference as to whether the school is in the country or a large city. For a winter only waiting suits which must be given first consideration, while in a city school the everyday dress is generally somewhat more claborate and the coat and skirt costumes smarter in cut and texture than are required otherwise.

coat and skirt costumes smarter in cut and texture than are required otherwise, naturally somewhat more smartly gowned than a girl who grows up in the country, and the school dress is a triffe more elaborate, therefore, when intended for eity wear. Simplicity, however, is the keynote for every sort of frock for a young girl, and it is a mistake to deviate from this rule even for an evening darms. Decreases the superior of the process throughout, rather than separate whats and skirts, are most in voque for all ages—shirt waists there must be, of

The skirt must have as straight as possible without being to tight. The secret of success with the new skirts is while beging the lines absolutely perpendicular to also keep the skirt from being too narrow at the aniles. A good model for a rough serge suit had a double panel or plait point and back, the sides of the skirt being made of straight pleess of material. While there were no gove to give lare, there was still sufficient to the skirt being made of straight plees of still sufficient had been any one of three ways—the high belt, with the material hung from a piece of still ribbon the skirt finished at the beit in any one of three ways—the high belt, with the material hung from a narrow gros grain bank with a stitched helt of the material at taked at the top, fastisched beit of the material at taked at the top, fastisched beit of the material at taked at the stiff belting is one gray used for club skirts, and when the stiff belting is used it is not more than two rackes wide and the skirt is generally fitted fairly well to the figure. Separate belts of a different material are seldom worn.

Even a young girl must be careful to have her soft satin.

Even a young girl must be careful to have her soft satin undershirt well fitted and of just the right length for her dires, otherwise he best cut shirt will never hang well. A savid wrinkles under the dress.

It is hard to say which style of jacket is most in vogue for the schoolgirl, that which is belied in at the waist line or the model which hangs very nearly straight from the shool ders. White the long coats have lost favor altogether, still the very short jackets are to be avoided. A jacket reaching girl. She will outgrow it too quickly, for one thing, and for another, a short coat is never so good in whater as one which is long enough to give some little warmth below the waist. The medium length three quarter coats are smartest of all lattley simple, it should at the same time be finished becoming to give some six of the same time be finished becoming to the same state of the same time be finished becoming to a young girl is should refer in silk or velve! on the newstream young girl is should refer the with this collar there may be felt that completes a most effective little containe. To change from the cloth waist a bediece of the same shade of silk, relieved by embroidered lines collar and eaffs, will be most use-felt.

Silk waists are certainly being worn more than formerly by young girls, and even in the schoolroom simple blouses of rolard and India silk are more in evidence than the warmer frounds of India silk are more in evidence than the warmer than been found most practicable for even young girls to have their blouses and undergarments of about equal texture all the year round, the outer garments being heavily interlined and wnoled. For the exceptionally cold days the average must have an extra thickness of chamois or fanned when the waist is so very light in weight. For separate waist, and Dotted silks are extremely pretty epe in chans to one of the waist is so very light in which measures, if of a good quality, will stand even the hard wear of the schoolroom. Transparent collars are seen on almost all separate waists, but the Dutch collar and frill is not looked upon as very good style will be supported to the schoolroom. Transparent collars are seen on simost all separate waists, but the Dutch collar and frill is not looked upon as very good style although in an afternoon dress three-quarter length sleeves are permissible.

Velveteens and corduroys are the materials of the winter without a doubt, and for a Sunday freek, a gown and jacket. This stress may be fashioned with students implicitly, no trimming at all on the skirt, while the coat displays only collar and culfs of the blue or golden brown satin. Ruby red cordurely is also an exquisite shade and should be worn wear the more sombre tones.

For a coat and skirt costume for Sunday and the occasional Saturday matince treat, smooth cloths of fine quality are once again to be worn. Rough goods of all descriptions—some standards and the school of the skirt, while the cost in the same standards and the content of the school of the content of a princes molet and it will not be necessary to put any more of the cloth or velvet upon the waist. A touch of bright his or of a princes medic and it will not be necessary to put any more of the cloth or velvet upon the waist. A

There is no hind of costume which receives the same un-ceasing wear as a school dress. It is almost necessary for a gift to be provided with at least two gowns in therough order with which to start the winter. The 'best' suit of first win-ter will perhaps do for ordinary wear with some little reno-ted to provide simply a pretty, simple gown of plafe or dark blue, brown or green serge or elsevide, to be worn beneath the always necessary ulser or fur cust. This extra gown will seve the cost and skirt costume themselously and will select the cost and skirt costume themselonly and will separate waists and skirts. There must, of course, be two hats, and if possible three, provided for boarding-school outfits—one last for her best street dress, another for ordinary wear and a smaller hat between the two off ar or block velvet that can be worn with different freeks. That is the velvet that can be worn with different freeks. That is the post things, and it will be much easier if she can have just a few cestumes, hats, etc, which will answer all purposes, than if she has a number of gowns, none especially good, yet all possible to wear. Soft felt or beaver is best for the school hat, trimmed either with ribbon or wings. A salior shape, the bring tured up slightly all anound, the cours made and the course of different colors also made at tractive trimmings, etc., and will answer all purposes.

Two simple gowns to wear in the evening, with, perhaps, one more claborate for special wear, are really all sufficient. Voils foulard, cashnere, or cachemic de soie, creps de chies, chiffon cloth and voile almon make up charmingly for a simple draped gown with the contract of the contr

A Startling Statement

It has been said by those who have investigated the matter carefully that, although at the age of 35, fully 80 per cent, of men are established in whatever pursuit they follow and are in receipt of incomes in excess of their expendure. At the agal of 50 it has been found that 95 per cent, are dependent on their daily earnings, or upon their children for support, Many no doubt read the dispatch from December 1997. nvestigated the matter carefully that, troit which reacting uppers and which described the condition of a man who but a little more than 40 years ago was a "financial power" in that city, who had a "palarial home" on one of the most fashionable thoroughfares, entertained high and to whom every person, high and low, was prepared to pay homese. But the fates were against him. He suffered serious financial losses, and when he began to go down hill he found it was properly greased for the occasion. His friends deserted him like rats from a sinking ship, and now at 80 years of age, after his day's large has more declarate to the city. with the bent, broken down old mer
